

How to Get a GOOD Job

Date: 2021.05.26 (Thursday)

Time: 10h20-12h10

Venue: LAN004

It is often said that there are not enough jobs in today's highly competitive environment and/or that there are not enough 'good' jobs. Yet, people are getting hired. It is the minority of people actively seeking good jobs that actually get hired for these jobs. The question is: Why is it that only a few people get hired for the good jobs and most don't? Why is it that 'More than half of those fresh out of school in Taiwan this year are still looking for full-time jobs with which they are satisfied?' We will discuss this, and much more, on May 26th from 10:20 – 12:10.

Henry Westheim

Henry Westheim has been a teacher for over 25 years. As a teacher in New York City part of his responsibility was helping students obtain internships, and to get jobs after graduation. As a teacher at Tunghai University, he currently teaches a student-designed elective course entitled "Job Hunting and Interviewing Skills". In addition, Henry has experience working in the business sector of New York City and owning a small business.
